NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC LEARNING ELT CATALOG

We are all explorers. Every time we learn something new, we go outside our comfort zone or we continue doggedly on the path in front of us, we employ the same skills as an intrepid explorer. National Geographic Explorers not only display those traits of curiosity and perseverance but are also the living embodiment of our values here at National Geographic Learning – those of being a responsible global citizen, using 21st Century skills to succeed and being effective learners.

That's why National Geographic Explorers feature everywhere in our materials through their work, their research and their photographs. Our newest title – Impact – uses them to striking effect with teenage learners of English, where their inspiring work and determination can really make a difference to young minds.

Find out more about this title on page 30.

Learning a language is like exploration – it's a long road but it's incredibly rewarding, especially if you've got the best tools for the job.

So enjoy the view, and remember, we are all explorers.

The National Geographic Learning team

Bringing the World to the Classroom... and the Classroom to Life.

At National Geographic Learning, we believe education is one of the great transformative forces of this century. Our goal is to help learners and teachers to achieve personal success and be better citizens of the 21st century. We want English language teachers and their students to experience the excitement and joy of learning, and to bring their classroom to life. Our mission is to create materials which inspire students to learn and acquire the skills they need to be successful in their careers or educational experiences, and to become future leaders of the planet.

Through our partnership with TED, we provide inspiring content for learners to understand and share through English. Using the power of ideas to change attitudes and lives, alongside rich, National Geographic resources, powerful TEDTALKS are now integrated into select materials to provide an engaging springboard for learners to share Ideas Worth Spreading in English.

Our exclusive partnerships with National Geographic and TED provide a unique opportunity to inspire, expand global awareness, and teach learners how to be leaders, through learning English.

The series has a gradual progression with the focus on communicative skills in the early levels whilst reading and writing are introduced from the 4th level onwards. - ▶ Students lay the groundwork for language by being introduced to the communicative skills of English in the earlier levels before tackling reading and writing skills in later levels
- ▶ Project work not only provides a great way to use the language in a productive way but also encourages collaborative work and problem solving – key 21st century skills
- ▶ Picture stories introduce natural language and vocabulary through simple and accessible story-lines
- ▶ Special online downloads give guidance and support for teaching pupils with specific learning needs and challenges

LESSON B READING

I N T O T H E U N K N O W N

IN THE DAYS of Stanley and Livingstone, much of the world was still unexplored. Today, most places on the surface of the world have been mapped. Some places, however, are still waiting to be discovered. Some of these are underground, in deep caves called blue holes.

A blue hole is a special kind of inland<sup>1</sup> underwater cave. The cave forms when the earth above it falls in. Some of the world's most spectacular<sup>2</sup> blue holes are located in the Bahamas. The islands there may have more than a thousand blue holes. These caves are very deep—for example, Dean's Blue Hole, the deepest blue hole in the world, is more than 660 feet (200 meters) deep.

Diving into blue holes is extremely dangerous. Near the top of a blue hole, there is a layer of poisonous gas. This gas causes itching, dizziness, and—in large amounts—death. Divers must also be fast. They have to get in and out of a cave before their oxygen runs out. Additionally, it's very dark in these caves, so it is very easy to get lost. Divers therefore have to follow a guideline<sup>3</sup> as they swim through a blue hole. If they lose the guideline, they may not find their way back out of the cave.

If blue holes are so dangerous, why do explorers and scientists risk their lives to explore them? One reason is that these underwater caves can provide valuable scientific information. They provide clues about geology, archaeology, and even astrobiology—the study of life in the universe. For example, some blue hole creatures, such as the remipede, probably haven't changed for millions of years. Divers have also found bacteria that can live without oxygen. Similar life forms probably existed on Earth billions of years ago.

In addition, the oxygen-free environment of the blue holes preserves bones of humans and animals that fell into the caves long ago. By studying the blue holes, we can understand what life was like in prehistoric<sup>4</sup> times. As cave diver Kenny Broad says, "I can think of no other environment on Earth that is so challenging to explore and gives us back so much scientifically."

Windows on an Alien World?

An inland blue hole's water is very still and has different layers. A layer of fresh rainwater floats on top of salt water. The fresh water keeps oxygen from the atmosphere from reaching the salt water. Brightly colored bacteria live where the two layers meet. Scientists believe these bacteria could teach us about life in outer space. Astrobiologist Kevin Hand says the bacteria may be similar to forms of life that might exist on Jupiter's fourth largest moon, Europa. "Our study of life's extremes on Earth," says Hand, can help increase "our understanding of habitable environments of Earth."

<sup>3</sup> A guideline is a line or a rope that someone follows to go from one place to another.
<sup>4</sup> Prehistoric people and things existed at a time before information was written down.

Elementary–

Level 1-3

British English

Practical Grammar is a three-level British English grammar course for self-study or use in the classroom. The series takes students through key aspects of English grammar from Elementary to Upper Intermediate levels.

Each level of Practical Grammar has 100 units, divided into modules of five units. Each module examines a particular area of grammar. The grammar is set in short, everyday conversations or texts, showing the language in natural situations which students will find engaging and can relate to. Students then examine the form, meaning and use of the language before practicing it in a variety of activity types. A Review section concludes each module and regular tests check students' progress. Each level comes with two audio CDs and a pin code which allows access to MyPG for extensive additional online practice for use at home or in self-access centres. * Real language in natural situations: exposes students to grammar at work * Listening and pronunciation: two audio CDs provide listen and check support and key pronunciation of the grammar items. * Tips: highlight common errors and characteristics of English Grammar * Regular review and progress tests: give students the opportunity to check their learning

Book 1-2

Mark Tulip with Louise Green and Richard Nicholas

Heads Up is a practical student-based speaking course, devised to meet the overriding need in-work students have to become operational in spoken English as quickly and efficiently as possible. Heads Up addresses the lack of time these one-to-one or group learners often have and the need for streamlined materials targeting their own needs in their own world of work. The materials in Heads Up help students to successfully achieve speaking skills development by providing careful preparation leading up to personalized tasks, supported by consistent pronunciation practice and teacher feedback.

The 40 units per level of Heads Up get right to the heart of the students' needs and wishes, and are divided into three sections: 'My Job', 'My Business' and 'The Bigger Picture' with considerable input invited from students. The topics encourage students to talk about their own work contexts, while the activities naturally stimulate and motivate learners with personalized tasks.

Key Features

- ▶ Offers extensive listening and speaking practice with personalized tasks
- ▶ Provides regular pronunciation work, with attention to elision, stress and intonation
- ▶ Suitable for normal class use and some guided self-study

The Successful Business Writing series features 15 units and 15 practice units.

- Modern terminology and themes relevant to today's hi-tech business environment.
- Reading activities specially designed to emphasize key areas of business communication.
- A targeted grammatical focus for each unit.
- Useful vocabulary that can be applied to multiple areas of the business world.
- Engaging examples of how and where these contemporary words and phrases can and should be used.

Each unit contains the following components:

1. Introduction – This section provides an overview of the overarching business concept to be covered in the unit, explaining in detail all that the concept encompasses in a way that is both comprehensive and easy to understand.
2. Outline – The outlines provide a paragraph by paragraph, step-by-step breakdown of what is to be included in a certain piece of business correspondence, whether it be an e-mail, an itinerary or agenda, or a report.
3. Model – This text provides a concrete example of what is presented in the outline. In reading the model text, students can become familiar with the tone, style, and scope of the content that they will later write themselves.
4. Language Focus – In each unit, two different grammatical concepts are introduced.
5. Vocabulary Exercises – Following the Language Focus sections are vocabulary exercises which test students' retention of the target vocabulary.
6. Writing Exercises – Toward the end of the unit, students are reintroduced to the business English concept the unit covers through examples, questions, and the opportunity to do some writing of their own.
7. Case Study – Each unit culminates in a case study in which students have the chance to put their knowledge of the subject material to the ultimate test by writing a passage similar to that in the model texts.
