"I'd recommend Open Mind to other directors and schools, as well as to students studying at home. The bottom line is we want our students to be happy and motivated and if we can create a context where that happens, then students will learn. Open Mind helps us achieve our goals of being learner-centred and being motivational and inspirational."

Case study

Swan English Language Training, Dublin, Ireland

Swan English Language Training is a medium-sized school in central Dublin, which focuses on exam courses and general English. We have students here from lots of different countries worldwide – which makes it a very animated and diverse school. A lot of them are looking for employment in the long term, so they need to learn English for the workplace.

We've been using Open Mind Intermediate for several months for our general English courses. We like the fact that it focuses on academic and professional skills, which is something that all our students want. It introduces students to independent learning in a relevant way – they can see themselves using the language outside of the school, for example in their professional lives. Lots of our students have high academic aspirations too, and they can see it being used in their future academic lives. We've had amazing feedback so far from our students, and teachers are also very keen on Open Mind – even the ones who don't usually like coursebooks! We teachers really like the life skills sections for the same reasons as the students.

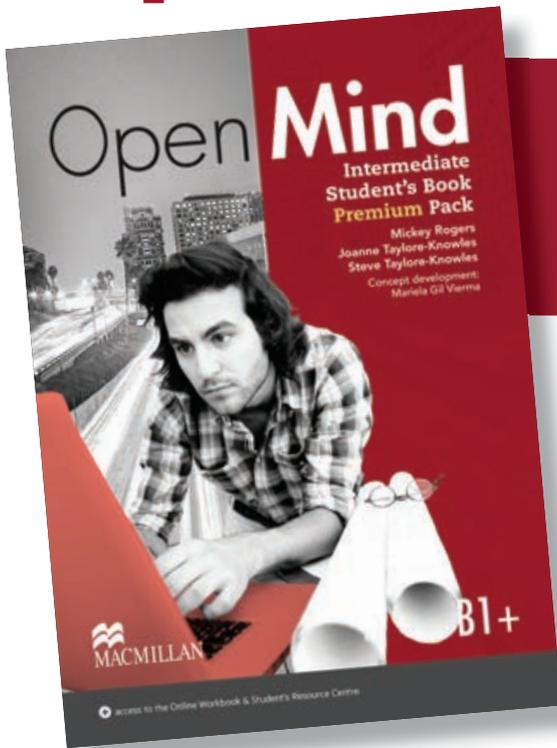

One of the things we like is the structure, which is very clear and distinct. We like the fact that there's an emphasis upon students using the language first, and then reflecting on how they use it, so that when we're doing the grammar activities, students will already have experienced the grammar in use. Our students enjoy the opportunity to communicate with each other and to talk a lot. At the same time, the course addresses important writing and reading skills.

author snapshot: Steve Taylore-Knowles

Steve has been involved in ELT for over 20 years as a teacher, examiner, trainer and author. His most recent courses are the Mind series and Open Mind. He has also written many other successful courses including Laser for teenagers and Destination.

A student's experience of learning English has to be seen in the wider context of their whole education. In developing Open Mind, we have carefully integrated two aspects of this:

- 1) learning English needs to be personalised, and
- 2) the student needs to develop life skills in preparation for using English in the real world beyond the classroom.

Steve Taylore-Knowles, Open Mind co-author

- Life-skills features in every unit develop 21st-century skills for students' working, academic or personal lives
- Regular recycling of skills and functions plus focus on functional language builds confidence
